Hawai'i flies with us

Aloha and Happy Holidays.

It's our pleasure to welcome you to the 2021 Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic. If you've come to Hawai'i as a guest, we hope you enjoy your stay. Hawai'i is a unique destination with a long tradition of hospitality. As Hawaii's largest and longest-serving airline, we've been privileged to share the spirit of Aloha with guests for the past 92 years.

Aloha takes many forms on our flights. You'll experience it in the genuine smiles that welcome you aboard our flights and in the convenience of no change fees if your travel date should change.* And you'll feel Aloha in our commitment to provide greater comfort in every class, including exclusive lie-flat seats in our Premium Cabin and additional legroom in our Extra Comfort seats.

We want you to feel that you're in Hawai'i whether you're on your way here or homeward bound aboard one of our non-stop flights to 16 destinations across the Continental U.S.

You'll also feel Aloha in the stories of Hawai'i we share in our in-flight entertainment and Hana Hou! magazine. Talking story is a great Hawai'i tradition. So, if you want a tip about the best restaurants or surf spots, all you have to do is ask. We'd love to tell you about our favorite places.

We hope to welcome you aboard soon.

*For tickets purchased or HawaiianMiles redeemed for Main Cabin fares and higher.

A MESSAGE FROM GOVERNOR DAVID IGE

It gives me great pleasure to welcome the players, coaches, families and fans who are joining us from across the country for the 12th Annual Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic. This tournament not only showcases great basketball, but also provides us all with a memorable experience in reconnecting with old friends and meeting new ones.

Congratulations to the eight teams that will compete this year: Brigham Young University, Liberty University, the University of Northern Iowa, the University of South Florida, Stanford University, Vanderbilt University, the University of Wyoming and tournament host the University of Hawai'i at Mānoa. I hope that you all share in our enthusiasm and enjoyment.

Mahalo to Hawaiian Airlines, ESPN, the University of Hawai'i and the other sponsors for showcasing O'ahu to millions of viewers and bringing basketball fans and families together for this holiday tradition. Our hope is that the spirit of sportsmanship prevails during the tournament and that the passion all of the players have for this incredible sport drives them to be their very best at all times.

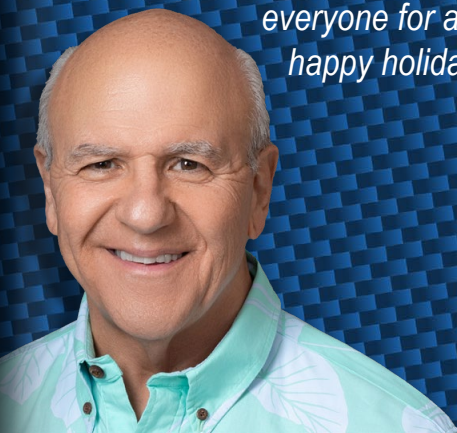

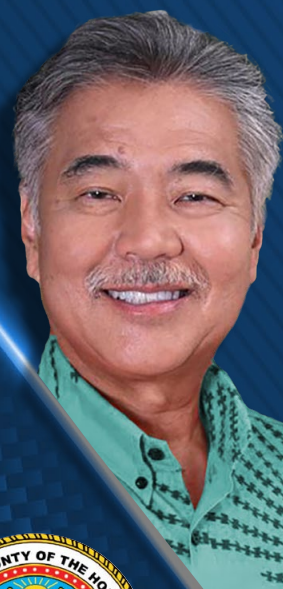

On behalf of the City and County of Honolulu, I extend best wishes to everyone for an entertaining basketball tournament and for a happy holiday season.

On behalf of the people of Hawai'i, I warmly welcome the organizers, sponsors, players and attendees of the 12th Annual Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic. Hawai'i is proud to host this premiere, nationally-televised Division I College basketball tournament, and we are eager to share our aloha spirit with visiting teams and fans once again.

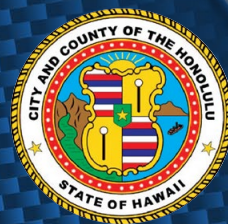

Eight teams are competing at the SimpliFi Arena at the Stan Sheriff Center: Brigham Young, Liberty, Northern Iowa, South Florida, Stanford, Vanderbilt, Wyoming and our very own University of Hawai'i Rainbow Warriors. I encourage fans across the nation to have fun cheering on their favorite teams and invite visitors to experience Hawaii's unique culture and beauty during our warm and sunny holiday season.

Mahalo nui loa to Hawaiian Airlines, ESPN, and all other local and national sponsors who have contributed to this exciting event. Best "swishes" to the teams, and to all, enjoy the games!

With warmest regards,

HAWAII HOLIDAYS MEAN BASKETBALL

By Brian McInnis

More than a half-century of prestigious holiday college basketball tournaments in Hawai'i – a tradition that includes players the caliber of Michael Jordan, Isiah Thomas and Pete Maravich, coaches like Dean Smith, Mike Krzyzewski and Jim Valvano, and teams such as Michigan's Fab Five – began in striking fashion.

Specifically, with a punch.

The spiritual predecessor of the modern Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic was the old eight-team Rainbow Classic, founded in 1964. It was the brainchild of then-University of Hawai'i coach Red Rocha and Chuck Leahey, the director of special services and athletic director for the 14th Naval District. The two sought to turn a spotlight on hoops in Hawai'i; the time seemed right with the NCAA's appealing new scheduling exemption that allowed teams to get in extra games at non-Mainland locales. Through Leahey's ties, visitors would stay in military accommodations to help defray costs.

The inaugural tournament featured five Mainland college programs, two local military teams, and host UH at the newly built Honolulu International Center. Shoot, even Boston Celtics legend Bob Cousy was coming, as the coach of Boston College.

Rocha and Leahey got their wish for attention right off the bat, albeit probably not in the way they intended.

The very first Rainbow Classic game was a hotly contested one between the Hawaii Marines and Utah State University. The Marines would eventually win that battle in overtime, 94-91, but the score barely registered. The banner across the front page of the Dec. 27, 1964 edition of The Honolulu Advertiser was about what happened after the final horn.

Utah State coach LaDell Andersen disagreed with the local officials' calls late in the game and got into a walk-and-talk on-court argument with referee Creighton "Fuzzy" Richards. Head of officials Jimmy Aiona intervened — and, in front of the 5,600 on hand, slugger Andersen in the jaw, knocking him unconscious.

Bedlam ensued between fans, players and the referee. Aiona, who was subsequently barred from officiating future UH events, was whisked away, but not before Mayor Neal Blaisdell, a spectator for what unfurled and the future namesake of the 8,000-seat arena, gave the ref what the Advertiser described as a "tongue-lashing."

Anderson was treated at Queen's Hospital for a bloody nose and released. Utah State's Wayne Estes would go on to score 122 points in three games, a record that still stands, and the Marines took home the first of tournament title with a win over Wisconsin.

Civility and hospitality improved drastically from there (it didn't hurt that Outrigger Hotels stepped up as a longtime tournament sponsor). Over the next few years, the event garnered national attention on its on-court merits. Final Four teams Houston and Ohio State came over in 1967 and national finalist Purdue appeared the next year. Maravich, "The Pistol," scored a still-tournament single-game record 53 points for LSU, including 40 in a half, in a semifinal win over St. John's in '69.

"We don't invite anybody to this tournament," Rocha told Sports Illustrated in 1970. "It's a matter of refusing requests."

Rocha's legendary Fabulous Five teams claimed UH's first Rainbow Classic titles in 1970 and 1971. Bob Nash's 30 rebounds in a title-game win over Arizona State in '71 stands as both a tournament and school record.

By the time current Spectrum Sports analyst Artie Wilson committed to be a part of that '71 team, the tournament was already a thing — and in his mind it set the bar for other early season nonconference events around the country, such as the Great Alaska Shootout, which came about in 1978.

Sellouts and raucous atmospheres were like clockwork over four days between Christmas and New Year's Eve, Wilson recalls, even for consolation-round games.

"It was probably the biggest ticket in town for the holiday season other than Christmas morning when you're waiting for Santa to arrive," Wilson said. "It was everything everybody wanted. I think people planned their company parties and their Christmas parties and their family outings around the Rainbow Classic."

For the competing teams, that time of the season was valuable for tuning up issues just before conference play began, helping justify the lengthy travel.

When the Rainbow Classic originated, games were televised but taped. It steadily evolved to the point where, through the 1990s, national television coverage became the norm, through UH's upset of Roy Williams and No. 2 Kansas in the ESPN-televised 1997 Rainbow Classic final.

While Jordan and North Carolina prevailed in the 1982 Rainbow Classic, the event's pinnacle could well have been a decade later, when three of the four eventual Final Four teams that year — UNC, Michigan and Kansas — competed at the Blaisdell. The Michigan Fab Five got the better of the Tar Heels in a Rainbow Classic semifinal, but Dean Smith's squad prevailed in the national title game rematch in April.

Over time, pre-conference season tournaments gradually proliferated and it became increasingly difficult to attract marquee teams to the Islands, though the Maui Invitational, which began in 1984, emerged as a force during Thanksgiving week every year. By the mid-2000s, the floodgates were fully open for multi-team exempted events.

A solution emerged through a partnership between ESPN Events and host UH, and the nationally televised, eight-team Diamond Head Classic was launched in 2009 with Hawaiian Airlines as the title sponsor, and UH's 10,300-seat Stan Sheriff Center the backdrop. Immediately, it moved into the holiday slot formerly occupied by the Rainbow Classic, which became a four-team round-robin tournament at the start of UH's season.

"As you started to see the Rainbow Classic maybe wane in magnitude over time, I thought that it was really a shrewd move on the part of ESPN Events, Pete Derzis (the retired ESPN Senior Vice President of College Sports Programming) and company, to understand and identify there was this great thing that had become a tradition associated with Hawai'i and college basketball," said Kanoa Leahey, who has been a part of ESPN's broadcast team as a play-by-play announcer for each of the 11 editions of the Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic to date.

Leahey feels a special connection to the holiday tournaments in the Islands that his grandfather, Chuck, helped found.

"The (Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic) idea really germinated from, 'hey, let's try to restore some of that, and try to create a tournament that can, at least on some levels, live up to that tradition and that legacy.' That's really the purpose of the Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic, that's really what it served."

The modern Classic has certainly had its share of marquee teams and moments, whether it was Butler's 2010 appearance between Cinderella Final Four runs, Nick Johnson's title-saving block for Arizona over San Diego State in 2012, or Buddy Hield and No. 3 Oklahoma previewing a Final Four appearance in 2015.

Both the Rainbow Classic and Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic were canceled in 2020 as a result of scheduling and travel difficulties due to the coronavirus.

"It was missed, and I'm extremely excited about the fact that it's scheduled to be back on track here this year, because it just serves such a great purpose in co-branding Hawai'i and college basketball at its best," Leahey said.

The 2021 Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic field, set for Dec. 22, 23 and 25 at the SimpliFi Arena at Stan Sheriff Center, includes: host Hawai'i of the Big West Conference; Vanderbilt of the Southeastern Conference; South Florida of the American Athletic Conference; BYU of the West Coast Conference; Stanford of the Pac-12 Conference; Wyoming of the Mountain West Conference; Northern Iowa of the Missouri Valley Conference; and Liberty of the Atlantic Sun Conference.

CLASSIC MOMENTS

World Class Basketball Island Style

By Lance Tominaga

Now in its twelfth year, the Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic has become one of college basketball's premier holiday spectacles, showcasing some of the country's top teams, players and coaches – all competing in the most alluring tropical setting in the world.

The tournament's alumni roster includes NBA All-Star Klay Thompson, who has won three NBA championship rings with the Golden State Warriors. Thompson led the Washington State Cougars to the Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic championship game in 2010.

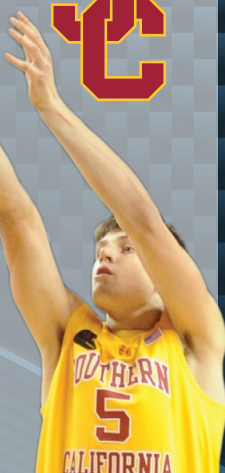

The list also includes Buddy Hield, who now plays for the Sacramento Kings. The former Oklahoma Sooners still holds the tournament record for most total points (86).

The USC Trojans used a stifling defense and a 16-2 first-half run to upend the No. 20-ranked UNLV Runnin' Rebels, 67-56, and capture the inaugural Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic championship. The Trojans' lineup also included sophomore forward Nikola Vucevic, now an All-Star performer for the NBA's Chicago Bulls.

2011

Kansas State outscored their three tournament opponents by a combined 50 points, to claim the 2011 title. For Hawai'i fans, however, the tournament highlight was the host team's thrilling 84-82 upset over No. 14-ranked Xavier. Rainbow Warrior forward Joston Thomas dropped in a floater with 1.5 seconds left in overtime to give Hawai'i the win.

Both No. 3-ranked Arizona and No. 17 San Diego State had 11-game winning streaks heading into the tournament's championship game, but it was the Wildcats who pulled out a 68-67 victory. Tournament MVP and future NBA first-round pick Solomon Hill led Arizona with 21 points, and teammate Nick Johnson swatted away a last-second layup attempt to preserve the win.

The Iowa State Cyclones entered the Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic with a spotless 8-0 record, and their run through the tournament only built on their No. 14 national ranking. Still, it took a 23-point effort by guard DeAndre Kane to seal Iowa State's championship win over Boise State, 70-66.

2010

The Butler Bulldogs rolled to 84-68 win over Washington State to claim the tournament title. The Bulldogs used the tournament as a springboard for a Cinderella run in the NCAA Tournament, falling to Connecticut in the national championship game. Brad Stevens, now the head coach for the Boston Celtics, would be named the "Clair Bee Coach of the Year."

PLAYER TO WATCH

AJ GREEN

AJ Green looks to make a strong return after missing all but three games last year due to injury. The 6-4 guard out of Cedar Falls, Iowa, was the MVC Player of the Year as a sophomore after averaging 19.7 points per game. He enters his redshirt junior campaign as the preseason favorite for Player of the Year. He continues to climb the scoring charts at Northern Iowa, where he has already scored more than 1,200 career points in just a little more than two seasons of action.

PLAYER TO WATCH CALEB MURPHY

Caleb Murphy returns to the lineup after a stellar inaugural season with the Bulls. Murphy started 18 of 21 games last year and by season's end was named to the 2020-21 American Athletic Conference All-Freshman Team. The 6-4 guard averaged 8.3 points per game and scored in double-digits eight times, highlighted by a career-high 20 points at Memphis. Big things are expected this year out of the native of Youngstown, Ohio, who also averaged 2.9 assists and 2.3 rebounds per game as a true freshman.

PLAYER TO WATCH

SCOTTY PIPPEN, JR.

Preseason SEC Player of the Year, Scotty Pippen Jr. was also named to the Bob Cousy Award watch list, an honor that goes to the nation's top point guard. As a sophomore, Pippen was an NABC First-Team All-District pick and an All-SEC selection by The Associated Press after he set a school record for a sophomore with 20.8 points per game – that also ranked as the seventh-highest scoring season in program history and highest since 1999-2000.

A native of Los Angeles, Pippen also posted the ninth-most assists per game in Vandy history last season and ranked second in the SEC with 4.9 per contest. He ranked third in the SEC and ninth nationally with 142 made free throws, and second in the SEC with 1.77 steals per game. He shot 42.8 percent from the field overall, 35.8 percent from 3-point range and 85 percent from the free throw line (second in SEC) and led the team in scoring 13 times.

2014

Yuta Watanabe, a 6-10 freshman from Japan, sparked a furious second-half run to help George Washington upset No. 11-ranked Wichita State in the tournament championship. Watanabe scored 10 points, including a key three-pointer late in the game. He now plays for the NBA's Toronto Raptors.

2015

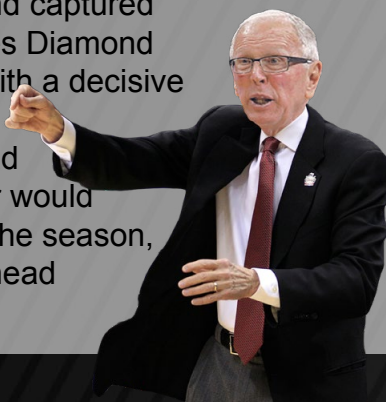

Future NBA Lottery pick Buddy Hield scored 34 points to lead the No.3-ranked Oklahoma Sooners to a convincing 83-71 victory over Harvard in the title game. The Sooners would go on to reach the NCAA Tournament's Final Four, and Hield won several national Player of the Year honors, including the coveted John Wooden Award and Naismith Award.

2016

The San Diego State Aztecs, who arrived in Honolulu with a three-game losing streak, drained a tournament-record 29 three-point shots and captured the Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic title with a decisive victory over San Francisco. Head Coach Steve Fisher would retire at the end of the season, capping a 27-year head coaching career.

2017

Forward Benny Boatwright poured in a career-high 33 points to lead USC to a 77-72 victory over New Mexico

State in the championship game, giving the Trojans their second Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic tournament title. It was a redeeming performance for Boatwright, who scored only 2 points and was ejected in his team's opening contest against Akron.

2018

Behind senior guard Alex Robinson, the Texas Christian

University Horned Frogs rolled to an 83-69 victory over Indiana State to claim the tournament championship.

Robinson recorded 15 points, 8 rebounds and 4 assists in the game. He set a new tournament record with 26 assists in the three-day event. TCU is coached by former Hawai'i assistant Jamie Dixon.

Trailing by as many as 14 points in the first half, the Houston Cougars rallied to a 75-71 victory over No. 21 Washington to claim their first Hawaiian Airlines Diamond Head Classic title. Fabian White Jr. and Caleb Mills led the Cougars with 19 points apiece, with White taking "Most Outstanding Player" honors. Center/forward Isaiah Stewart, now with the Detroit Pistons, paced the Huskies with 25 points and eight rebounds.
